The income tax will not likely reach Washingtonville. Roy Grim is said to be an applicant for the Washingtonville postoffice.

R. B. Maxwell was in Lisbon Saturday and bought four head of Holstein cows. Joseph Andrew of Salem was here Saturday visiting his parents and grandmother. Valentine day passed off with no perceptable increase in the local postoffice receipts.

The coal and clay miners received their valentines in pay envelopes Saturday afternoon. Two classes of the Methodist Sunday school gave a pie social in the church basement Saturday night.

Prof. E. S. Freed and wife of Girard spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of Wm. E. Roller and wife. Last year's floods on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers are predicted for this year, and the prediction is based upon scientific reasons. Street lights in Salineville are now shut off at 10 o'clock. This mining town has a population of 3,000 but is too poor for midnight luxuries. Sheriff J. C. Umstead has posted his proclamation here calling for a "wet and dry" election to be held throughout Mahoning county Monday,

Louis Atkinson, whose injuries at week, was able to be on the street before the news of his injuries was published. Louis has the grit of a grindstone and is not easily discouraged. He once played ball with the Washingtonville team and stood all kinds of punishment. Steubenville will now see better days. Five hundred of a thousand emploves of the tin plant company, who have been on a strike for nearly a year, returned to work Monday, and the balance will return March 1. The company agrees to recognize a local committee but not the union. At the time of the strike last year the citizens and business men sympathized with the strikers, which angered the operators and they close the mills.

Somebody went into a Salem cafe one day last week and was given a Limberger sandwich or a codfish ball. Then the board of health was consulted and they quarantined the hou e and called out the fire department the matter was brought before the mayor. This is another serious charge may furnish a few more columns of sensational news for the daily papers.

Under the good roads laws of Ohio, as unintelligible as they appear, there looms up this primary information for roads: The state pays 50 per cent of the cost of construction; the county pays 25 per cent; the township pays 15 per cent, and the abutland owners pay 10 per cent. Under the present plan, however, it has been given out that Washingtonville can get a 14-foot brick highway along the Main street (without curbing and not extending into the alleys) not cost the village anything. But the right of way must be given to the state by ordinance, the same as the Y. & O. secured its franchise. Those already at the front will not suffer this little village to "stick in mud" for all it costs to build three-fourths of a mile of road.

Township assessors began work on Monday with the instruction that "All property is to be ascessed at its real value, and in the name of the owner. The property of husband and wife to be listed seperately. Farm stock to be taken at its real value as well as feed and grain. Merchants' stocks, now reduced, is to be appraised according to the monthly average for the year, and not at the value now placed on it by the owner we could get men like John D. Rockefeller of Cleveland and Peter Kuntz of Dayton to pay their taxes, we would have little trouble with the average citizens of the state," says the state tax commission in a statement anent its recent troubles with the Oil "The average Oh'o taxpayer is a much maligned individual," says that cause us worry."
